DR. BURTSELL'S BUSINESS IN ROME. The long stay of Dr. Burtsell in Rome has begun to disturb his friends and arouse the curiosity of the public. Although he has written several letters home, they have given no hint of his business in the holy city. The statement is made, apparently with authority, that Dr. Burtsell was summoned to Rome to explain and defend before a commission cardinals the economic doctrines he has been

The Jesuits have made a strong effort to have the lenry George system rejected as dangerous, but the Pope refused to consider their propositions until he had seen and talked with Dr. Burtsell, who is unsidered by many to be their ablest exponent in merica.

interfere with the public-school system, and strongly condemning the appropriation of State funds to sectarian schools. In the Presbyterian ministers' meeting the Rev. Dr. George E. Morrison and others spoke against any change in the present school system in Maryland. It is reported that Cardinal Gibbons has ordered the priests and teachers to stop agitation of the school question and the further distribution of the circulars which have raised such a storm of protests from Protestant denominations. It is said that the circular was prepared under the direction of Monsignor the present time, was compelled to yield to the Apostolic Delegate.

THE HEAD OF THE BANKING-HOUSE FLED.

1ANY PEOPLE WANT TO GET AT A. M. DE CHATE LARD, WHO HAS RUN AWAY WITH THEIR MONEY.

A. M. de Chatelard, of the firm of A. M. de Chatelard & Co., No. 5 Broadwoy, is anxiously wanted by a considerable number of people in this city and Brooklyn, and also in the South. He has disappeared with money, bonds and other securities which do not belong to him. De Chatelard advertised the business as a branch of the Banque Francaise, No. 103 rue Francois-Xavier, Montreal, and his circulars offered tempting interest on all deposits under

The Cleveland Firebrick Company months ago issued bonds, part of which were placed in the hands of A. M. de Chatelard to sell. No satisfactory report of the disposal of those bonds was received by C. J. Noel, treasurer of the Firebrick Company. He made a hasty visit to this city last October and saw Alphonse Rouseau at the Broadway office, who "Co." in the A. M. Chatelard & Co.

en the fraud came to light. V. L. Morehead, one of the lawyers retained by Mr. Noel, said yesterday to a Tribune reporter:

"Alphonse Rouseau said to Mr. Noel that the bulk of the bonds issued by the Cleveland Firebrick Company had been sent to de Chatelard, who had sent back word that he had disposed of them, but he failed to give any account of the money Mr. Rouseau leems to me to be blameless in the fraudulent transactions of the head of the banking firm, and he has given us all the information in his leading that the Chatelard is now and he has given us all the information in his power. He told us that De Chatelard is now in Brusselis, where the mother firm of A. M. de Chatelard is established. Mr. Rouseau was willing that we should close up the concern, and we did it Nov. 9 From the Sheriff's sale we got only about $99.

we did it Nov. 9. From the Sheriff's sale we got only about $39.

We will do nothing more until we hear from Mr. Noel, who sailed for Europe last October to see De Charteland.

"Mr. Rouseau might be held responsible for the firm's indebtedness, but he has nothing."

It is said that De Chatelard conducts a paper at Montreal known as "Le Figaro." One of the victims of De Chatelard is Mrs. Lucy de Villeroy, No. 16 Joralemon-st., Brooklyn. She secured a loan from the defunct bank of $400. This was November 10, 1832. She deposited as security seven 509-franc bonds. Six months later she paid $100 on account, and gave instructions early last month to De Chatelard to sell three of the bonds to balance up the account. Mrs. de Villeroy says that de Chatelard told her to call again on November 27, of the present year, and he would then surrender the other four bonds and pay her whatever was coming to her. She did call on that day, but found the place closed. Mrs. te Villeroy says she will apply to Districtitorney Nicoll to have De Chatelard extradited.

CHURCH CONSOLIDATION CAUSES DISCUSSION IN CHOIR LOFTS-CONTRACTS GOOD

The organists and choirs of the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth-ave, and Thirty-seventh-st., the Rev. Dr. Henry van Dyke, pastor, and the Presby-terian Church of the Covenant, Park-ave., and are uncertain as to their fate when those churches shall have been consolidated and the Church of the Covenant closed. It is reported that the friends of each are "pulling wires" for their retention, and that the subject has aroused considerable feeling. which some fear may result in a factional spirit in the consolidated congregations. At the home of the Rev. Dr. van Dyke, No. 14 East Thirty-seventh-st., last evening, a Tribune reporter was nformed that Dr. van Dyke was out of town. The reporter saw the Rev. Dr. Mclivaine at the par-onage, No. 37 East Thirty-fifth-st. Dr. Mclivaine mid he knew of no feeling or contention about the prganists or choirs. The agreement to consolidate rould not be ratified by the congregations before Pecember 20. It would then have to be submitted ir approval to the Presbytery at its January meetng, and afterward to the Supreme Court for legali-nation. The union could not be completed before could not be appointed until trustees of the united churches were elected, and of whom the committee would be composed or wnat it would do no one ould now tell. choirs of both churches would not expire till May I, and all their salaries were guaranteed up to that date.

Walter J. Hail, organist and choirmaster of the Church of the Covenant, was seen at his home, No. 201 West Fifty-seventh-st. He said his choir was a quartet composed of soloists. Miss Blanche Taylor was soprano; Miss Laura Graves, contraito; Albert Lester King, tenor, and Dr. Carl E. Dufft, basso, Mr. Hail was unaware of any feeling or any apprehension. The choir was engaged till May I, and their contract was good. There had been some talk about consolidating the choirs till May I, but that would hardly be practicable, as the members were all soloists, and it would be difficult, if not impossible, to satisfy them in deciding by whom the solos should be sung.

Fred. Schilling, organist and choirmaster of the Brick Church, was seen at his home, No, 176 West Eighty-second-st. He said: "It is hard to tell what will be done. The members of my quartet are all soloists. Miss Alice Breen is soprano; Mrs. Frederic Dean, contraito; Harry May, tenor, and W. E. Harper, busso. It is doubtful that there will be any consolidation of the choirs. There may be some compromise made with the choir which shall be disengaged when the churches are finally united.

"Both choirs are solid until May I, as they have contracts that singers can get. It has been suggested that the two choirs alternate till May I, see choir to sing for one month and the other the next month, and that would be a good plan. The organists could no doubt get along all right, but with singers it is different. Singers are a funny lot of people, and one cannot be selected to the seed only ill-feeling or contention about the follows.

REPORTS REGARDING DAUPHIN ISLAND

Reports from London say that "The Pall Mall Gazette," edited and owned by William Waldorf Treasury, Pietro Vacchelli; Public Astor, has been sued for $400,000 for the publication of articles alleged to be defamatory of a plan for the improvement of Dauphin Island in and Telegraphs, Signor Blasic; Justice, Calcedonio Mobile Bay, on the coast of Alabama. The plan of the improvement has been looked upon by benefit, when carried into effect, to the is about three miles from the main shore about thirty miles directly south of the city of Mobile. It is a fact that between New-Orleans Fortress Monroe there are no harbors whose waters will float the largest ships. few years ago, it is said, this Dauphin Island became an interesting study among engineers. Business men in Alabama and elsewhere have been in these later days looking for avenues for trade with South America, where they might introduce their coal and other products. A plan was conceived of building great docks on Dauphin Island, which would float any steamship of the world. It was proposed to build a rail way line from Mobile to the coast, bridge a channel three miles wide, and connect the line with Dauphin Island, and thus secure a wharf for the greatest steamships.

Money was not forthcoming in this country for the advancement of the plan, and the investment of English capital was sought. Engineering experts were employed in England, and their reports were favorable to the investment. About five millions of dollars were required to perfect all details and insure the probable success of the undertaking.

The titular president of the company is the well-kinown lawyer, Robert Sewell, in this city.
He said vesterday that he knew nothing whatever of the proceedings against "The Pall Mall Gazette," and declined to speak further on the subject. The hint was given, however, from other sources that when the plan of a railroad along the western coast of Mobile Bay to connect with Dauphin Island by a trestlework and drawbridge, was mooted, certain parties sought an interest in the scheme and, failing to secure an investment, proposed another line extending from the point of the island on the east side of the entrance to the bay, a far less practicable plan, as a study of the maps will show. It is believed here in certain quarters that the attacks have been inspired by representatives of this last-mentioned interest.

HE DIED SUDDENLY IN THE STREET.

A MAN, AT PIRST ERRONEOUSLY SUPPOSED TO BE ALPHONSE DE RIESTHAL, THE PAPAL COUNT, GIVES A CRY AND EXPIRES.

A tall, finely built military-looking German poorly dressed in clothes that had once been good, walked wearily down Second-ave. in the dusk of yesterday afternoon until he reached Twenty-sixth-st., down which he turned. His step was labored and heavy, his breath came in thick, short gasps, and his face had slowly turned an ashen gray. "Give me a chair, for God's sake:" he cried to James Donahue, who keeps a store at No. 311. Donahue dragged a chair out to the sidewalk, the man sat down on it and died. In the lining of his hat was stamped the name

A. de Riesthal, and this clue, telegraphed to Police Headquarters, gave rise to the impression that he was Alphonse de Riesthal, head of the Ravenswood Glass Company, No. 55 Murray-st., and a count created by Pope Leo XIII. But one look at at the body of the man and the papers found on him was sufficient to dissipate this impression. A letter addressed to "Dear this impression. A letter addressed to "Dear Boby," and signed "Fritz"; a card bearing the name Felix Nickert, No. 1.105 Park-ave, and the address of Hugo Kraemer, No. 113 East Fourteenth-st., were the only evidences upon him of his probable identity. A pair of steel-rimmed spectacles was in his walstcoat pocket, but he was entirely destitute of money. Bright's disease had brought about his death, and his body now lies at the Morgue.

Mr. de Reisthal was seen at his home, No. 200 Hewes-st., Brooklyn, last night, and was found alive and apparently in good health. "The man

"When I last saw him, about four months ago, he was a correspondent of an army and naval journal, and in pretty hard luck. He asked me for some clothes, and I gave him an old hat, an overcoat and other clothing. In the hat was the stamp of my name, 'A de Riesthal,' and my home address.

POLITICS IN THE NATIONAL GUARD.

ONE OF THE TAMMANY LEADERS.

The retirement of Colonel Cavanagh from com-mand of the 69th Regiment, has brought out a story of the way in which attempts have been made to infuse politics into the organization. Thomas Dunn, the Tammany leader of the XXIId Assembly District, was once a private in Company E, 12th Regiment. Dunn's soul did not seem to be fired with a military spirit, for, as the record shows, he preferred to pay fines rather than attend drills. Something more to his taste was on hand. A new armory was being built for the regiment, and Dunn had a contract for part of the work. Finally he left the regiment. He no doubt knows the reason why the step was taken. At any rate the armory was completed and there were no more contracts

The 63th Regiment, however, is housed in an old miasmatic building, and steps have been taken looking to the building of a new armory. Some one must get the contract for it. Whether or not that had anything to do with Dunn's reappearance on the military scene is not certain. But in spite of his indifference, while he was a mere private in the 12th Regiment his name was prominently men-tioned in connection with a place on the staff of Colonel Cavanagh.

What experience Dunn had had for the place no

What experience Dunn had had for the place no one has explained. As a contractor his specialty is furnishing stone. The report was that he was to be appointed commissary of the regiment, and the fact remains that the present commissary. Robert E. Ford, was given to understand that his resignation would be accepted. The fact was also made known generally that Dunn would be appointed in Ford's place.

Colonel Heman Dowd, of the 12th Regiment, wrote a letter to Colonel Cavanagh, telling him that he did not think a man who had made no better record than Dunn had in the 12th Regiment ought to be honored by an appointment to the staff of the colonel of any other organization in the brigade. After receiving this letter, Colonel Cavanagh said no more about the appointment of Dunn, and Ford was not pressed for his resignation.

The order retiring Colonel Cavanagh from the command of the 6ath Regiment was not received at regimental headquarters last night. It probably will be received at the armory to-day, and it will then take effect, after which Lieutenant-Colonel Moran will be in command of the regiment. The officers expect that an order for an election will be sent out this week, but it cannot be held before some day next week, because a notice of five days is necessary.

The body was turned over to an undertaker from Brooklyn and it will be buried in the Catholic cemetery at Flatbush.

The official announcement of the new Cabinet was delayed by Signor Boselli's hesitation about accepting the Finance portfolio. Strong pressure was used to persuade him to enter the Cabinet, but at the last moment he withdrew unconditionally from further negotiations with Zanardelli. The Ministry of Finance was then intrusted provisionally to Pietro Vacchelli, the new Minister of the Treasury.

Pietro Vacchelli, the new Minister of the Treasury.

Boseill's refusal of office has made a painful impression upon the public mind. Besides suspicions concerning his reasons for deserting Zanardelli, fears that some man of small financial knowledge may be summoned to solve the grave financial problems of the present have greatly shaken confidence in the stability of the new Cabinet. Most politicians are predicting that Zanardelli will not obtain a majority in the Chambers will be opened for only one day, when the new Ministry will be presented, and then will be closed until after Christmas. The object of this plan is to stifle the numerous interpellations of which Deputies have given notice.

"The Spanish troops at the fortifications in the front were reinforced hastily, and three brigades were ordered to make ready to support the engineers at work round Fort Guariach. Every preparation for a battle was made, and the keenest expectation was felt. Toward evening, however, the Pacha sent a message to the effect that the Benislears had become manageable, and the excitement among the Riffians had abated, owing to the energetic opposition of the Mazuza tribesmen to the plan of attack. The Mazuzas, Baja-el-Arbi said, were using all their influence for peace. "It is reported that the tribes now arriving from the interior urge others to make war. Consequently the troops still expect to have some fighting."

London, Dec. 5.—Commenting upon President Cleveland's message, "The Times" says; "The message exhibits clear and well-reasoned views of polcy, as well as much force of character. The portions bearing upon foreign affairs are conceived in ceptibilities of other countries. The friendly expressions employed in mentioning the questions pending between the United States and the United Kingdom represent the dominant feeling as well as the paramount interests of both." "The Times" commends with special warmth the President's policy toward Hawaii.

"The Standard" says: "Mr. Cleveland has stood for reform like a rock. No words could be clearer in dealing with the thorny tariff question and no attitude could be sounder from the American standpoint. The President and his Cabinet have chosen their position with remarkable shrewdness. Their policy divides and demoralizes the enemy at the beginning of the battle. It is also a policy which commends itself to the most ardent America-for-the-American patriot."

"The Morning Post" says of the message: "There is no indication in it of party exultation. Mr. Cleveland leaves his countrymen to draw the inferences from the facts detailed, although mearly every paragraph would be instructive reading if printed in parallel columns with some of Mr. Harrison's high-sounding orations.

"The Daily News" says: "The message is well worthy of the great national crisis in which it is delivered. The inference from the President's facts and figures, whether intended or not, is that it is the true policy of the United States to cultivate close relations with the old home and to extend and strengthen the commercial intercourse of the two nations."

A RUSSIAN BARON ACQUITTED OF MURDER. de Rahden, a Russian, was acquitted of the charge of murder. The victim was Lieutenant Castenkiold, an officer of the Danish Army. The lieutenant, it appears, met Baroness de Rahdan, who, prior to her marriage and afterward, was a circus rider. He paid devoted attention to her, and finally her husband called him to account for it. A duel was fought, and the Baron was wounded. In their travels about the Continent the Baron and his wife were followed by Castenkiold, and when at Cormon-Ferrand the enraged husband shot and killed his wife's admirer. At the trial to-day the principal witness against Baron de Rahden was Herr Weiss, of Breslau, father of the Baroness. The Baron and Baroness also testified.

Mr. Gresham communicated this to our Ambassador. The promise was made some six months ago. Mr. Cleveland would certainly he the first one to admit that long delay in fulfilling that promise would not be in harmony with the excellent relations existing between the countries." The leader ends with the words: "We hope Mr. Cleveland will hasten his new choice."

Mr. McKay for many years has run the Metropolitan Hotel in Boston, and is a thorough and successful hotel man. He originally came from the West. He is well known throughout Colorado, having been one of the first settlers of Leadville.

In the management of the Oriental Mr. McKay will introduce many features new even to New-York. In his Boston house he made a success of a scheme of having private supper-rooms with kitchen attachments. These rooms were for the luse of gentlemen who wished to cook a chop or broil a bird for themselves. The idea became extermely popular in Boston, and Mr. McKay thinks he can make a success of it here. In the

They are Adolph Tornros and William Holstron, Swedes. The latter tells a graphic story of the wreck. He says that after they encountered the destructive storm of last month, they knew that their chance of reaching land was small. The Bean was good and strong, and even to the last did not leak. She was simply driven to her doom before the fierce storm that did not relax its force for an instant.

Captain Mountfort was perfectly collected, and ail that the best seamanship could do was done to save the vessel and the lives of the crew. Their Toothbrushes and dentists are even scarcer in Africa than Bibles, but that state of things is soon to be remedied, so far as a bright American girl can do it. Dr. Jennie Taylor, of Montoursville, Penn., will start to-morrow for the dark continent with her uncle, Bishop William Taylor, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to improve the teeth and morals of the benighted west coast. In spite of an evident rejuctance to be brought into print, Dr. Taylor consented for the good of the missionary cause to speak of her plans to a the missionary cause to speak of her plans to a Tribune reporter, who called upon her at the home of Dr. William E. Dunn, No. 331 Lexington-ave, yesterday. She is a graduate of Dickinson College and of the Women's Medical College of Pennsylvania. Since receiving her medical degree she has seen a year's service as resident physician at the Methodist Episcopal Hospital in Philadelphia. When Bishop Taylor told her last summer how much the missionaries in Liberia, along the Congo and in Angola, down the coast, needed a dentist, she volunteered for the work, an all that vast region, there is only one practitioner, and he is a negro.

Dr. Dunn, with whom she has been studying dentistry daily for months, expressed himself as highly pleased with her proficiency. He said it paid him for the time he threw away on a man whom he once trained for the same work, but who backed out when he heard what the death-rate of white men is on the Congo.

What Dr. Taylor seems to dread most is sea sickness on the voyage, and the long intervals between the home mails while travelling in Africa. She expects to stay there until 1898.
